Robert Lee says “aLoveLinksPlus.com has been vigilant in its reviews of dating services that we are proud to recommend to internet users. Only by exceeding in the design and usability of their offerings are these dating services actually great places to meet compatible singles online.

“Dating services, to be successful in matching the majority of their user/members to other members, need to have a significant user base in their specific niche to be successful at what they do. And also they need to be user friendly while still using the newest technologies available to be attractive to potential members. With the current swing towards free dating services that are advertiser supported, it's refreshing to find that the better dating services charge a membership fee which keeps the "casual dater" and "loiterer" out.

“Online dating service users don't appreciate wasting time in finding people to date and this is why aLoveLinksPlus.com continues in its efforts to identify the best online dating services, over a wide ranging and ever changing collection of categories, for the benefit of people that are seriously interested in joining the online dating world.”

Emily of PositiveSingles.com says "We are pleased with being a recommended dating service at aLoveLinksPlus.com. Thousands of people get STDs and don't realize it. Having an STD could lead to confusion, resentment, anger, and isolating yourself. One may ask themselves many questions. Starting from January 15, 2008, members at positivesingles.com can ask a STD counselor questions as well as problem with marriage, friendship people may meet when they get STDs. The information covers the most updated information, including news, treatment, and drugs about STDs. The counselor will answer any kinds of questions related STDs. They promise to answer all questions within 1 working day, and encourage people who have similar STD symptoms to feel free to ask questions there."

Marisa Gonzalez of DatingnMore.com is enthusiastic about being included in the aLoveLinksPlus.com Directory.

Of DatingnMore.com she says "Datingnmore.com is probably the only dating service on the web that doesn't have scammers. I don't just boot them off, but don't allow them to register in the first place, by blocking all scammer's registrations. This is our "know-how". The site is a division of a well-known anti-scam website www.romancescam.com, which was featured on the Oprah Winfrey show last year, in the episode about the Internet love scams, and on the UK show "Tonight with Trevor McDonald" in February this year. It's great to be recognized for the service we provide our members."

aLoveLinksPlus.com is proud to sponsor two contests in May that feature exciting prizes:

Singlesnet.com 1 year memberships

"Hungry Girl" by Lisa Lillien, a recipe book for guilt-free eating in the real world.
